Henrico approves purchase of property for Pulse extension

Henrico is preparing for a westward expansion of the GRTC Pulse bus rapid transit service along West Broad Street.

The expansion will allow riders to travel quickly between Rocketts Landing in Richmond and Parham Road in Henrico, with stops along the way. Currently, Pulse's western-most station is at Willow Lawn.

The Board of Supervisors recently approved the purchase of 8207 W. Broad St. in the Old Parham Road Shopping Center as a site for a new station.

Initial plans include amenities such as parking and public restrooms for riders. Officials estimate the station will open in three to five years.

GRTC, in coordination with the county, will hold a public meeting Oct. 1 at 5 p.m. at Libbie Mill Library to share plans for the station. We hope to see you there!

Public Utilities employee makes special connection along his route

We encourage all our employees to make connections with our Henrico residents. Ronnie Miles, a heavy equipment specialist in the Public Utilities Solid Waste Division, takes that goal seriously.

JB lives in Henrico and recently fractured his elbow. He knew exactly who he wanted to get to sign his cast -- his favorite trash collector!

"They have a special relationship and always look forward to seeing each other every Friday!" JB's mom said.

This spring, Ronnie won honorable mention for the Public Contact Customer Service Award from the American Public Works Association Mid-Atlantic Chapter. According to his supervisors, Ronnie is a dedicated hard worker who takes pride in building these relationships along his route and is always willing to pitch in to help his colleagues. Keep up the great work, Ronnie!

Residents encouraged to practice mosquito control

The Public Works Environmental Services Division's mosquito team monitors and tests mosquitos each summer looking for disease. The team recently detected the West Nile Virus in mosquitos in Henrico earlier than usual.

Residents are encouraged to take extra precaution to prevent bites. Use an EPA-approved repellent, wear loose-fitting long sleeves and pants, and reduce time outdoors at dusk.

Henrico residents can schedule a free inspection with the mosquito team to locate potential mosquito breeding sites on their property. The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention also has guidance on preventing bites.

Public Utilities continues testing at Cobbs Creek Reservoir

Almost two decades in the making, Cobbs Creek Reservoir is in the final stages of testing!

This $280 million project, located in Cumberland County, will secure the drinking water needs of Henrico's residents for decades. During heavy rain and other wet times of year, the pumps will pull water from the James River into the reservoir, providing Henrico with up to an additional 47 million gallons per day than what it currently uses. When the river is at lower levels due to drought or dry weather, the reservoir will release the water back into the river to help maintain river levels for aquatic life and supply the drinking water for Henrico and other localities.

Later this year once testing is complete, Public Utilities will place the reservoir into operation. Stay tuned for more information!
